

Our Proposal for A Better Future

Urban Development and Environment

Group G

We want to build a future where education is one of the vital pillars in any urban development plan. Future education should be free to everyone.

Education helps reduce the gap between the rich and poor by giving people needed knowledge and skills to increase their income level. Education will also promote sympathy and understanding of different cultures and believes. This will also result in social equality and prevent any conflicts to happen.

Another key factor of the better future is the leadership of government. Any decision made by government should be based on the contribution and ideas of its people. Everyone should have the power and freedom to express their ideas and do what they want, legally. The government should aim at building a beautiful and wonderful society for its people. It should also demonstrate its role by setting regulations for the sake of its people. For example, investing in technology to build sufficient water treatment plant or solar energy, and public transportation system. Government should also care about protecting the environment under which its people are living. Policies to control food waste, promote the use of eco-friendly items or green energy should be put in place. Beside there are needs of promoting cultural diversity (Introducing festivals), reserving values and traditions (through education and building museums) while creating socialization (community building).
